Carbon fibers are utilized for various applications such as reinforcing structural components and thermal insulating materials and the like. Carbon fibers generally have excellent specific strength, specific modulus of elasticity, specific heat and electrical conductivity. Carbon fibers are also excellent in handling ease, therefore, the applications thereof are expected to be greatly expanded in the future. Carbon fibers are generally manufactured by a heat treatment method in which a carbon precursor such as an organic solvent type resin and an organic metal compound is heated at a high temperature under an inert atmosphere or a burning method in which a carbon precursor is heated at a high temperature in the presence of an oxidizing agent. In addition, carbon fibers are manufactured by a chemical vapor deposition method in which a carbon precursor is exposed to a plasma in an inert gas atmosphere. However, the heat treatment method generally requires a high temperature process at a temperature of about 2000° C. or higher, therefore, equipment used therein is expensive. In addition, carbon fibers obtained by the heat treatment method contain a large amount of impurities, thereby, a pretreatment is generally conducted at a high temperature to increase the yield. Further, when the heat treatment method is employed, the amount 79a2804d6b
